GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC SECTOR ORGANIZATIONS MUST ARCHIVE COMMUNICATIONS

Government organizations are required by law to archive, retain and supervise business communications. Regulations such as the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Federal Information Security Management Act (FISMA) lay out specific mandates around communications that must be retained, including those taking place over social media, mobile devices, and messaging platforms. Failure to comply with these rules can lead to fines and has resulted in a number of high-profile enforcement cases where organizations were penalized for failure to adhere to compliance rules.

MERGE1 HELPS GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC SECTOR ORGANIZATIONS MEET COMPLIANCE REGULATIONS EFFICIENTLY

Since 2005, Merge1 by Veritas has helped governmental organizations quickly and easily gain compliance with messaging regulations. Merge1 was designed to help facilitate compliance by using your current infrastructure. Merge1 extends your existing email archive to capture various content types and communications channels, including social media, instant messaging (IM), mobile, Cloud-based files and collaboration platforms like Slack and Yammer. Once messages and content from these platforms are ingested into your archive, they can be retained according to retention rules, supervised for compliance and searched during eDiscovery.
